Threats of Violence and Isolation

On a small island in Africa that we are working on reaching, a dear sister in the Lord has been receiving threats that unless she renounces her faith, her house will be torn down, and neighbors in the area will be instructed not to visit, or talk with her.

My prayer for her and for those who know her was "Do not be afraid. Jesus is your covering." Please stand with me in prayer for our sister, as she was told today, Friday, was the last day she had to make a decision.

The on the ground team tells me that "she is not afraid, but is anticipating God to show up. She sees this as an opportunity for God." What faith!! Wow!

In my experience a lot of times these are empty threats, or intimidation, and there is no carry through of violence. At the same time we know there are modern day martyrs, and it still happens.

Thank you praying for this sister. At this time I do not have a name to share.

Threats of Violence and Isolation

Hallelujah! Nobody touched her house, or even came near. On top of that, for some reason the local mosque moved their Friday prayers elsewhere in the city. I don't know if this was normal, but I love it. She's happy with how God has protected her, as she goes into her night right now.

And even to the opposite of their intent, she has so many friends and strangers checking in with her online today. What the evil one meant for bad, God has turned it around for good. He tends to do that, doesn't He. Would you praise Him with me? I'm going to hit send and then do a lil' praise dance.

He is exceedingly good, Amen?

Thank you, dear saints, for praying.
